Jogger fights off man with Taser in attempted kidnap

Vehicle had pink Lyft logo, the victim told police

By David Hernandez and Lyndsay Winkley | 4:53 p.m. July 27, 2016

SAN DIEGO — A jogger fought off a man who used a Taser on her and tried to pull her into his car in the University City neighborhood Wednesday, police said. The woman was running past a black sedan parked on Regents Road near Nobel Drive when a man got out shortly before 1 p.m., San Diego police said. The victim told police the man fired a Taser at her chest and tried to pull her into the four-door vehicle, which had a sticker of the pink Lyft logo. The woman fought off the assailant and ran away screaming, attracting attention. The man sped away. He was described as Middle Eastern, in his 30s, about 6 feet tall and skinny, with black hair. He was wearing glasses and dark clothing.
